The difference is learning to have conversations that keep you "above the line."

Those challenges develop and dissolve depending on the nature of our conversations!

Conversations can be critical and destructive leading to barriers and hurdles, or conversations can be generative and productive, paving the way for new possibilities and desired outcomes.

For example, meet these professionals . . .

KEVIN
CEO of Growing Technology Startup

MAYA
Director of Teacher Operations

DON
Dean of Student Success at local Community College

JILL
5th Grade Elementary School Teacher

... and their "below the line" headaches!

- Lack of Alignment Among Colleagues
- Unresolved Conflict
- Hesitancy to Speak Up & Engage
- Conflict Resolution Hurdles
- Unaddressed Safety Concerns
- Low Interdisciplinary Collaboration
- Confusion in Curriculum Delivery
- Miscommunication among Faculty & Staff
- Tough Conversations with Families
- Misunderstanding with Colleagues
- Cultural Differences
